About This Component

Engagement in extra-curricular activities has a similar benefit to joining a fraternity: It helps a man grow, challenge himself and express his interests. Being highly engaged in other student organizations benefits recruitment, the reputation of the chapter and each member's growth. Employment does not count as extra-curricular engagement.

Best Practices

- Join organizations from which you'd like to recruit. Men who are a part of a service organization will likely not have an issue with volunteering as a member of a fraternity, the same can be said for leadership organizations.
